

What's Really Happening in this Realm (Disclosure)

To all I say.....

"The Emperor has NO Clothes"!

How is our society so blind as to believe this charade any further?

Has it become criminal to be intelligent?

Are we too afraid to SEE, HEAR and SPEAK of the truly evil manifestations becoming our forced way of life?

I say enough!

Hear my words, the lies must end!

A great work to instill a sinister narrative has been unwinding its slithery head into the very womb of our existence. This deceitful menace has penetrated our defenses with no detection, no warning, and no remorse. Its deafening distractions plagues the very nature of our sensory.

I speak of electromagnetic interference. This intentional exposure of radiation throughout our modern world is by no accident. Since the early part of the twentieth century, it's been well understood when it comes to the effects of electromagnetic disruption on biology with various electromagnetic wavebands.

It's also well-established that these effects have been harnessed by the war master's for use against any that oppose their rule.

Waveguides have been deployed since the twenties as silent deterrents to opposing dissidents. These silent stalkers invade cellular nuclei development through entanglement via resonant vibrational exchange.

Think of how a tuning fork works when it comes into frequency alignment with another tuning fork, they both vibrate at the same oscillation's, matching speed and sound, causing one to engage the other. This is the simplified act of entanglement and is how we experience consciousness with the backdrop of the field known as reality.

This field is being altered by design, and consequently this will alter all the living beings that engage magnetic resonance with it. That simply means our consciousness connection is being altered, no biggie, why the #### not!

And that goes for all the other bio-life forms in the terrestrial we call reality as well.
If it lives here, this will affect it, period!

So, what's actually being done to us? Well for starters, we are all being subjected to a literal electrical signal that's being broadcast across the world and it is disrupting certain hemispheres of the brain from proper operation.

This signal's primary function is to cause pathway disruption and leads to short attention span skills and much of what people term as dysfunctionality within personality development.

This is only one form of affliction we are experiencing; many other programs are coupled and stacked together leading to a far more sinister outcome. We are mere sheep being led to the slaughter for reasons most will never know.

Our food system has been deliberately infested with ingredients labeled innocuous, however, its well known that all these materials lead to causes of disease and are highly toxic to biology. These ingredients come mostly in the way of color and flavor additives to processed foods, but in recent days have turned into nano-particulates that are imbedded throughout the entire food chain.

Why, might you ask? Why would anyone need or want to do such a thing? Simple! To gain control over others. But this plan goes much further than that. It goes as far as to interrupt the signal that is known as a feedback loop. That's what is known to be the connections to consciousness.

This signal is no different than that of a radio signal being broadcast from a tower, only its being broadcast from the two hemispheres of reality, the surface of the earth and the atmosphere. The disruption is only half the equation though, the other half of the plan is to transform the receivers into a syncopation of limited genetic expression.

This means the global overlords want a group of subservient bio-battery humanoid citizens. If that's not your idea of prosperity and life, well then maybe you should take a serious read through this opinion and figure out some facts pertaining to the world's situation unfolding in front of your eyes.

Food is stored energy. Its literally electrical charged matter. Moreover, its electrical fields that are stored. This means that the energy in food is literally alive. Follow me for a second longer with this thought.

Food is a combination of the environmental cues that were stored during the photosynthetic process, that would include the external environment of temperature, humidity, and the like. Did you know this will also include the radiation and gas present in the environment? More specifically this will include the electromagnetism measured as wavebands, and at what specific strength they are present. These factors are the combinations that create matter. Radiation can cause major damage to biology, plain and simple. So, the real question is then, why wouldn't someone know about this if it's such a problem? Well, it's not that simple. Those that might understand the science are either silenced or remain silent due to fear or personal gain. People are aware of the dangers, but we seem to be living in a period where people will make stupid decisions for personal gain and greed and overlook the consequences.

Unfortunately, these idiots will suffer like the rest of humanity if this plan is to succeed. Our cell nuclei is the cradle of life. It's the garden of Eden. It's also the book of life as far as holding the entire code of possibilities for genetic development, and to consider closing off that pathway is the very nature of suicide. Food is no different than that of a hard drive. It stores data. Data is then turned into building blocks that are created inside of the cell nuclei. Let me say that again, ALL life is built from the inside out, starting with radiation signals that are identified from a quantum antenna inside of all cell nuclei.

Care to take one guess as to what that quantum antenna is.... its DNA!

And DNA is a byproduct of mRNA cues, specifically radiation.

So, if one changes the outside environment with altered radiation states, and additionally alters the DNA by way of mRNA modifications, (hint, hint) they would essentially be able to remotely operate cellular development and that biological subject, game over.

Share this freely!

We are a small team actively working on real solutions to current problems and are seeking others to join us. Please reach out privately. Thank you.

We believe the solution is Natural ADAPTATION through food, created using individual wavebands of light and not Barbaric CRISPER or GMO Techniques. We have patented technology that does this.

This is our goal. It would allow the body to not be affected by what they're doing. Raising photosynthesis to a much higher level than the current 4% that it is at. Could you imagine what that could do? Is anyone out there capable to take action and assist this cause? If so, please private message me. Thank you.

GenesisonDemand@proton.me

207-616-8758

